HARDING OPPOSES BONUS BOND ISSUE

SALES TAX IS SUGGESTED AS ONLY AVAILABLE MEANS LEFT BY PRESIDENT

Believes Another Large Bond Issue Would Wreck the Treasury and Disturb Tranquility of Country—Members of American Legion Hopeful of Passage of Measure.

Washington.—Announcement from the White House that President Harding was opposed unconditionally to any of the suggested taxes or bond issues for paying a bonus to World War veterans was not known generally in Congress, but those who learned of the President's position predicted that it would not stop passage of a bill in the House. A protracted struggle is expected there. It is reported on excellent authority that President Harding will suggest a "modest sales tax" to finance the bonus, but a party of Senators will go to the White House to try to dissuade him from that course. The question now is whether or not the House will support the President, and if it repudiates his view, whether or not the Senate, in which sentiment against the bonus is stronger, will defeat the bill. If it passes both Houses, the President, as he announced a week ago, will veto such a measure.

Lobbies of financial, industrial and agricultural interests will be replaced by legislative agents of the American Legion, who, when informed of the President's position, announced that they were unworried.

"We are convinced absolutely that the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee will report out a bill that will be perfectly satisfactory to the business interests of the country, in so far as the tax features are concerned," John Thomas Taylor, legislative agent of the legion, declared.

The President opposed the bond issue plan because he doubted that it would be possible to gather the required sum without advancing interest rates or disturbing domestic tranquility. The White House statement was that the President did not believe, contrary to the views in certain sections of Congress, that it was feasible to collect a large sum by a bond issue at present, because in the next 15 months $60,000,000 in Victory and Liberty bonds had to be redeemed.

He thinks the flotation of another large issue would wreck the Treasury. The President left out extremely significant language in his statement, the sales tax. It was not discussed in any way. The opposition to it in Congress is overwhelming.

AMERICAN TROOPS ON WATCH

Await Expected Attack By Rebel Force On Juarez On Texas Border

El Paso, Texas.—El Paso still is mobilized, maintaining its "watchful waiting" to protect the border, after reports of an expected attack on Juarez by rebel forces were received. In Juarez the situation virtually is unchanged, with military and civil officers on the alert. Only a skeleton guard is on duty at the station, in the downtown district of Juarez, the remainder of the military force being kept on outpost duty and at the military post near the city.

General Mendez denied reports that he had been approached by representatives of rebel factions regarding the revolution and that he had been asked to surrender his command to that faction. He said, however, that he had heard the rebels were attempting to concentrate near south of Juarez but that he discredited the reports.

Army officers at Ft. Bliss admitted they had heard that General Mendez was invited to join the revolutionists and that the report partly was the cause of troops being mobilized at the fort, as they had understood that Mendez would not surrender without a fight.

IRISH VICTIMS IN KIDNAPPING RELEASED THROUGH EFFORTS OF COLLINS

Factions in North and South Ireland Each Fear An Attack From The Other—Commission Appointed To Ascertain Conditions.

London.—Michael Collins, head of the Irish Provisional Government, has obtained the release of 15 of the Unionist prisoners recently kidnapped. It was announced in the House of Commons by Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies. Mr. Collins hoped that more of the prisoners would be liberated shortly, the Secretary added.

Mr. Churchill said that at his suggestion Premier James Craig, of Ulster, and Mr. Collins had agreed to the appointment of impartial commissions, who would go to the border area, ascertain the facts, and keep in close touch with each other in order to allay, if possible, the great apprehension existing on both sides of the border at the action being taken on the other side.

On the other hand, he said there were considerable movements of armed forces in the north of Ireland, causing similar fears in the south. He had proposed, therefore, the formation of impartial commissions composed of several British in each and of officers of the forces of the opposing sides.

SENATE DEMANDS DATA ON TREATY

NO ATTEMPT AT SECRECY IN CONDUCTING NEGOTIATIONS, LODGE TELLS CHAMBERS

Advocates of Pact Do Not Oppose Reservation Making It Clear That United States Is Not Obligated To Use Force in Carrying Out Its Terms.

Washington.—Opponents of the four-power Pacific treaty won their first skirmish when it officially was admitted that no record or minutes of the negotiations that resulted in this particular pact were kept, notwithstanding that the data is complete on all other treaties. It also was brought out officially that the treaty was evolved without the knowledge of the press and that its incubation was kept a secret.

An even more impressive victory for the irreconcilables was reported in the definite statement that both the President and his supporters in the Senate were willing to accept a reservation, making it clear that this treaty does not obligate the United States to use force in carrying out its terms. The reservation, now regarded as obligatory, simply is considered to be unnecessary by friends of the treaty.

However, the position is taken that it will clear the air it will not be rejected. The reservation would be acceptable, it was said, because neither President or the American delegation as regards the treaty as a military pact, and do not object to this fact being accepted definitely.

The committee agreed to report all the treaties together, but their order of precedence was not determined. In the absence of the record it was predicted confidently that Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes would be called to testify. He and the heads of the other delegations alone participated in the final negotiations.

Nevertheless the Senate adopted the resolution introduced by Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, calling upon the President to supply the Senate with any information he has about these negotiations.

Advocates of the treaty did not oppose the resolution seriously, resting in the conviction that Mr. Harding necessarily must say he has virtually no documents.

"The negotiations were conducted entirely by conversations between the heads of the delegations and I know of no papers or minutes," asserted Senator Underwood.

"It is impossible to repeat conversations from memory, and if no conversations are to be allowed except such taken in shorthand in presence of a stenographer, very few treaties will be negotiated. There was an attempt whatever at secrecy," Senator Lodge added.
